FORT STREET TO BE PAVED

Not With Good Intentions But Bitulithic Material

Other material save good intentions will be utilized in the pavement of Fort street.

The City and County Supervisors have said it and not many moons hence the main artery of commerce in the city of Honolulu will be paved asunder and the doom of mud and muck on a large section of a downtown street will be sounded.

The bitulithic pavement will supplant the mire or dust which has bedecked Fort street between Queen and Beretania streets, for so these many years.

Last evening was cast the die which landed the contract in the net of J. A. Gilman, who represents the paving concern.

The work, it is said, will cost something like sixteen thousand dollars to complete and it was through the energy and untiring efforts of Chairman Quinn of the City and County Road Committee that the paving proposition was rushed through the board and finally adopted.

Mayor Fern and Clerk Kalauekalanui have been authorized to enter into a contract with Mr. Gilman for the paving of the several blocks along Fort street.

In his recommendation that the City and County of Honolulu enter into a contract with J. A. Gilman, representing the manufacturers of the bitulithic pavement, Chairman Quinn of the Committee on Roads and Bridges, stated that after a thorough investigation of the matter, the committee finds that the area on Fort street now under consideration amounts to approximately 5,555 yards at a cost of $3 a yard making the total expense for the city at about $16,665. The space allotted to the Honolulu Rapid Transit Company is not included in these figures, declared Quinn at last night's meeting.

According to statements from Mr. Gilman and Manager Warren of the Paving company, the firm can make a satisfactory deal with the street railway company.

Supervisor Quinn strongly recommended that a contract be awarded the bitulithic people and his resolution which was adopted before the meeting drew to a close called for a contract being entered by Mayor Fern and the county clerk with the paving concern. It is estimated that the city will remove the top dressing along Fort street to a depth of six inches and that the city furnish the paving company crushed rock at the quarry beds at 75 cents per yard.

proposition on the ground that he failed to see where the city had the money to pay for the work, he believed that other things were needed.

Abila also agreed with McChellan that the paving of Fort street could wait until other districts of the city and county had received a little attention.

Cox declared for permanent improvement and he believed that the paving of the down street would redound to the lasting benefit of the community.

Quinn who fathered the proposition from the start insisted that the paving of the metropolitan thoroughfare would serve as a monument to the retiring board.

Jegan showed the members where sufficient funds might be available for the work. He advocated the paving of the street.

Kane while not saying much voted for the award of the contract.

The vote resulted in Abila and McChellan being found on the negative side.

PERREIRA HOME AGAIN.

Manuel Perreira, foreman of the Maui News, who returned from his vacation trip to the States, was among the outgoing passengers on the Mauna Kea today. He is one of the rising young Portuguese of Walluku, Maui, where he has his residence.

While Mr. Perreira was in the States he visited a number of newspaper offices and familiarized himself with the modern method of job-work and printing.

DANCER AT EMPIRE.

Miss Aspinwall in her initial performance at the Empire Theater last night made as great a hit as she has been making at one of the other local theaters. Three crowded houses watched her give her new famous Indian dance, and so much appreciation was shown of her work at the last performance at 10 o'clock as at the first show. More stage room is allowed Miss Aspinwall in this theater than at the other and she takes advantage of the extra room by adding variations to the dance that were impossible in the other houses. In addition to this Miss Aspinwall had a new costume last night that won the admiration of the women in the audience, although the costume was Oriental. The dance is to be continued at the Empire all this week.

BAND CONCERT.
